WHY A MEMORIAL?

Memorials provide a place to visit and focus on the life of a loved one. They are a place to visit during grief, on anniversaries and important days in the life of the person who has passed away. Designing a memorial can help to complete the natural process of grieving for many people. A memorial is an important way to express love and respect for a person and to reflect on their life in a lasting and thoughtful way.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

What happens to handles and other fittings on the coffin?

Due to EPA considerations, the handles and fittings are removed and discarded.

Can I get the handles and fixings back?

Yes. You should inform your funeral director, who should make your wishes clear before the day of the cremation.

What about precious and other metals?

The temperature which a modern cremator operates is between 800 and 1000C. Metals are destroyed, so that they are not recognisable and have no salvage value. Any metallic material resulting from a cremation is disposed of in accordance with the cremation act.

What do you recommend about leaving items of jewelry on a body?

The best advice is that they should be removed after death. Once the coffin has entered the crematorium grounds the coffin cannot be opened.

Can relatives witness the committal of the coffin into the cremator?

Yes. The ashes can be posted within Australia using Australia Post. There is a fee of $150. Ashes cannot be posted overseas.

How can I be assured that I receive the correct ashes?

There is strict protocol in place throughout the cremation process. Each cremation chamber will only accept one coffin and the remains must be withdrawn before the cremator is used again. All remains are kept separate at all times.

What happens to the ashes after cremation?

Ashes are placed in an industry standard plastic urn, labelled, and kept in a secure area until we receive instructions from the applicant of the cremation.

Is it possible to divide the ashes?

Yes. In fact, many families request for ashes to be divided, so they have more options in regards to memorialisation. Please notify your Funeral Director or the Norwood Park Office of your wishes.

When can the ashes be collected?

You can collect the ashes 48 hours after cremation, Monday to Friday between 9:00am and 2:00pm. Norwood Park office need 24 hours notice of collection.

How long are the ashes held at the crematorium?

Norwood Park holds ashes for 12 months, any longer and a holding fee applies.

Do I need to purchase an urn?

As explained, the ashes are placed in an industry standard plastic urn:

Regular: 25cm x 11cm x 15cm

Small: 17.5cm x 7.5cm x 10.5cm

(suitable for wall interments)

However, should you wish to purchase a more ornate urn or one with different dimensions, Norwood Park has a variety of urns for sale. There is a selection on display and many more can be ordered.

Can the ashes be posted to me?

Yes, the ashes can be posted to a location within Australia using Australia Post. There is a fee of $150.00. Ashes cannot be posted overseas.

Can I scatter ashes in your grounds?

Yes. You will need to complete a form and pay $125. Ashes will be scattered in the Sir Joseph Banks garden.

Do I need to use a Funeral Director?

The best advise would be yes. Due to the finality of cremation, specific documentation is required under the Cremation Act 2003. Funeral Directors arrange this documentation; provide coffins, transportation of the deceased, arrangement of service, etc.

Which Funeral Director should I use?

Please see our website for information on Funeral Directors.

Where can the funeral service be held?

The service may take place in one's own church with a short committal service in the crematorium chapel or the whole service may be conducted elsewhere with the deceased coming to the crematorium after this service for a direct committal. You may arrange for your own minister or celebrant to conduct the service at the crematorium. The form of this service should be arranged with the minister and funeral director.

Must there be any religious ceremony with cremation?

No. A civil ceremony may be conducted or none at all. On occasions a memorial service is conducted after the cremation has taken place.

What happens at the crematorium on the day of the funeral?

The coffin is usually brought into the chapel and placed on the catafalque prior to the guests entering and taking their seats. At the appropriate time during the service the coffin will be removed from view, by being lowered. At the end of the service the mourners leave the chapel and may inspect the floral arrangements before leaving.

Can I play any media during the service?

Yes. Please visit our media page on our website for more information.

Do you offer any catering or after service functions?

By booking a service in the Norwood Park Chapel, you are entitled to use Norwood Park's catering room. The catering room caters from a minimum of 30 people to a maximum of 100. There are several catering packages available. Please note the Chapel times are linked to the catering room times. For more information on this, or how to book catering, please contact your Funeral Director. Unfortunately, no outside caterers are allowed at this time.

What types of memorials are available?

Norwood Park combines a variety of different theme areas for memorial locations that provide both peace and tranquility. Please refer to the memorial pages for more information.

Can I purchase a memorial before it is needed?

Yes. Cremation and memorial reservations can be pre-purchased. Plaques are purchased at the time of need.
